Frequently Asked Questions

Is a deposit required?

Yes! An initial non-refundable deposit is required to secure the commission and cover administrative costs on my side. This helps in case you decide to cancel at any stage of the commission.

Can I split a commission payment up?

Absolutely! After the deposit has been paid, the remainder of the cost can be split up into small instalments for your convenience. Feel free to inquire about a payment plan that suits you, and we can work together to find an arrangement that fits your budget.

How do I request a commission?

To request a commission, simply reach out to me through hello@rhitown.com, and we can discuss your ideas, preferences, and any specific details you have in mind.

What reference materials do you need from me?

I'll need clear reference photos of the subject(s) you want in the portrait. The more detailed and high-quality the reference images, the better the final result will be.

How long does it take to complete a commission?

The time frame can vary depending on the complexity and size of the project. On average, it takes a couple of weeks, but I'll provide you with a more accurate timeline once we discuss the specifics of your commission. Please let me know if the commission is a gift or special occasion with a deadline when you email so I can check my schedule and ensure I have the time to take it on before entering detailed discussions.

Can I make changes to the artwork once it's in progress?

Yes, I welcome feedback and am open to making reasonable adjustments during the process. Updates will be provided at each stage for your feedback. Major changes after a certain point may incur additional fees, but I'll communicate this clearly with you.

Do you offer rush orders or expedited services?

Yes, I can accommodate rush orders depending on my current workload. Additional fees may apply for expedited services, so feel free to inquire about availability and pricing.

Can I use the commissioned artwork for commercial purposes?

By default, my commissions are for personal use. If you intend to use the artwork for commercial purposes (for example intention to apply on a product for resale), please discuss this with me during the initial inquiry, as it may involve different terms and pricing.

How will I receive the final artwork?

The final artwork will be delivered digitally in a high-resolution format ready for print. A screen only copy will also be provided that is formatted for screen displays. Physical prints can be arranged for an additional fee, including shipping costs.

What happens if I need to cancel my commission?

If you need to cancel, the initial deposit is non-refundable due to the time and effort put into the administrative process. However, we can discuss the circumstances, and I'll do my best to accommodate!

Feel free to contact me if you have any other questions not answered here or if there's anything else you'd like to discuss about your portrait commission!

Terms and Conditions for Portrait Commissions

1. Commission Process

Upon agreement, a non-refundable deposit is required to initiate the commission. The remaining balance can be paid in installments as per a mutually agreed-upon payment plan.

2. Payment Plans

The importance of budgeting is understood. Feel free to discuss and establish a payment plan after the initial deposit. This allows you to comfortably spread the cost of the commission over a period that suits you.

3. Cancellations

The initial deposit is non-refundable to cover administrative efforts. In the event of cancellation, any work completed up to that point will be compensated accordingly.

4. Communication

Regular communication ensures your satisfaction and will be conducted via email. We encourage open dialogue to discuss your preferences, provide updates, and address any concerns throughout the commission process.

5. Delivery and Revisions

The final artwork will be delivered upon completion. Minor revisions are typically accommodated within the agreed scope of the project to ensure your portrait meets your expectations. Major changes after a certain point may incur additional fees, the artist will endeavour to communicate this clearly with you.

6. Copyright and Usage

The artist retains the copyright of the commissioned artwork. The client is granted personal use rights but may not reproduce, distribute, or profit from the artwork without prior agreement.

7. Completion Timeline

A tentative timeline for completion will be provided upon commission initiation. Late delivery of any required references or unforeseen circumstances may cause adjustments, but the artist will strive to meet agreed-upon deadlines.

8. Refunds

Refunds are generally not offered once work has commenced as this is a service, not a product. Exceptions may be considered on a case-by-case basis and are subject to discussion.

9. Pricing Guidelines

The prices outlined in the Commission Information document are for reference only and subject to change at any time.

10. Liability

The client assumes responsibility for the care of the artwork post-delivery, understanding that any damage thereafter is not the artist's liability. While precautions are taken during delivery, the artist is not responsible for loss, damage, or theft during transit. Clear and accurate client input is crucial, and any dissatisfaction arising from unclear or inaccurate information is not the artist's liability. The client is responsible for reviewing and approving the final artwork, and subsequent dissatisfaction post-approval may incur additional charges. The client ensures that provided reference materials do not infringe on copyrights, and the artist is not liable for legal consequences arising from such infringement. Confidentiality is maintained, but the artist is not liable for breaches beyond their control. Force majeure events are beyond the artist's liability, and proceeding with the commission indicates acceptance of these terms.

By proceeding with the commission, you acknowledge and agree to these terms and conditions. Your satisfaction is our priority, and we aim to create a positive and collaborative experience throughout the artistic process.
